In choosing water to represent the primeval matter, the ancient Egyptians were not so foolish as to imagine that it was water, but because terrestrial water corresponds to the nature of this invisible substance, as enshrined in their well-known Hermetic axiom 'as above, so below.' The female counterpart of Nu, the Goddess Nut, represented the sky, which we may also regard as another kind of water, just as we may regard interstellar space as the waters in which the planets of our Kosmos swim ...
