Massimo Rosati says that in a post secular society, religious and secular perspectives are on even ground, meaning that the two theoretically share equal importance. Modern societies that have considered themselves fully secular until recently have to change their value systems accordingly as to properly accommodate this co-existence.

Feisal G. Mohamed puts Milton in dialogue with "the post-secular present." Michael Ziser does the same with Emerson. Morrissey goes so far as to call Milton "our first postsecularist actually" (101). Finkelstein connects past and present, drawing within American poetry a genealogy of the "conflict between poetry and the sacred" that ...
