This will be the topic of the present chapter. Natural signs are divided into two classes: (1) signs identified with natural events or things (for example, the position of the sun); and (2) signs unintentionally produced by a human agent (for instance, a rash indicating chickenpox). This class includes several subclasses.

Natural sign In musical notation , a natural sign (♮) is an accidental sign used to cancel a flat or sharp from either a preceding note or the key signature . If a bar contains a double sharp or double flat accidental and the composer wishes to denote the same note with only a single sharp or flat, a natural sign traditionally precedes the (single) sharp or flat symbol.

In semiotics, a sign is anything that communicates a meaning that is not the sign itself to the interpreter of the sign. The meaning can be intentional such as a word uttered with a specific meaning, or unintentional, such as a symptom being a sign of a particular medical condition. Signs can communicate through any of the senses, visual, auditory, tactile, olfactory, or taste. Two major theories describe the way signs acquire the ability to transfer information. Both theories understand the def

There are seven letters used in a musical alphabet namely: A - B - C - D - E - F - G. The best way to illustrate what a natural tone, or natural note, is by looking at a piano keyboard. All the white keys are considered natural notes. A natural tone has no sharps or flats. The black keys on a keyboard indicate a sharp or flat note.
