If you think people are suing each other for stranger reasons than ever, here's all the proof you need. These stories are all true and drawn from actual court records. Start with the one about the family who bought a house that turned out to be haunted. And the young actor who sued a barber for cutting off too much hair. There are dozens more hilarious, weird, and wacky cases that stretch to the limit the legal definition of frivolous.

Presents a compendium of unusual facts, arranged in such categories as food, animals, the human body, nature, customs, entertainment, and sports.

Presents a compilation of wacky and sometimes icky facts that includes such topics as food, customs, animals, history, nature, and sports.

Presents a collection of silly laws, ridiculous court decisions, and strange government statutes that in many cases are still on the books.

In recent years, stories of reckless lawyers and greedy citizens have given the legal system, and victims in general, a bad name. Many Americans have come to believe that we live in the land of the litigious, where frivolous lawsuits and absurdly high settlements reign. Scholars have argued for years that this common view of the depraved ruin of our civil legal system is a myth, but their research and statistics rarely make the news. William Halton and Michael McCann here persuasively show how popularized distorted understandings of tort litigation (or tort tales) have been perpetuated by the mass media and reform proponents. Distorting the Law lays bare how media coverage has sensationalized lawsuits and sympathetically portrayed corporate interests, supporting big business and reinforcing negative stereotypes of law practices. Based on extensive interviews, nearly two decades of newspaper coverage, and in-depth studies of the McDonald's coffee case and tobacco litigation, Distorting the Law offers a compelling analysis of the presumed litigation crisis, the campaign for tort law reform, and the crucial role the media play in this process.

Actual cases from the book: • Boomerang unexpectedly returned and smacked you in the face? This is America, not Australia. We got you covered! • Train whistled at you and caused you tinnitus? It's a disability, file a claim! • Horse emptying his bowels on your lap? That's an "impact" and if the horse can't pay, its owner surely can! • Bought a pair of binoculars? Looked into the sun and hurt your eyes? Mislabelled, it's as clear as daylight! • Stole a gun and shot yourself? Worry not, you're technically unsophisticated and under aged too! • Are you too short to fly a Boeing 747? It's a handicap. Also a discrimination and let's see if we can shrink that bird! • Got a permanent erection? It must be your motorcycle, or the seat, or both! • Dead fly in bottled water? Head to court, even if you didn't drink the water! • Refused school admission seven times in a row? That's academic malpractice, we can help! A collection of 170 of the most unusual court cases from around the world. Compilation of outrageous, unusual and infamous court cases coupled with witty judicial opinions. Each case is a story by itself with references, including a link to the original court documents. E-book readers can simply tap on the link provided with each story and they can read the case, as it was filed in the courts. Print editions also have the links provided, however, they have to type the URL into their web browser, which takes them to the book's dedicated web-site.
